

The Mission and Ministry of Beaver Butler Presbytery

INVESTING IN COMMUNICATION ...

The key to successful communication in any organization is clear, honest speaking and interested listening. At the presbytery we seek to communicate with our congregations through every venue possible.

*Six presbytery meetings each year of pastors and elder commissioners are our best opportunity to engage in two-way communication.

*E-mail, postal mail, and telephone keep communication alive between presbytery meetings.

*The presbytery web site (www.beaverbutler.org) contains articles, notices, presbytery meeting agendas and minutes, mission information and much more.

*The most effective form of communication is face to face conversation. Presbytery representatives are available to preach, speak to classes, offer training, meet with pastor groups, visit with sessions and congregations.

Communication is dependent on the desire and willingness of the parties to participate in our common work. We encourage that willingness when our efforts are dedicated to the common causes of the Gospel which forms us as a presbytery.

The Mission and Ministry of
Beaver Butler Presbytery

INVESTING IN COMMUNICATION ...

The key to successful communication in any organization is clear, honest speaking and interested listening. At the presbytery we seek to communicate with our congregations through every venue possible.

*Six presbytery meetings each year of pastors and elder commissioners are our best opportunity to engage in two-way communication.

*E-mail, postal mail, and telephone keep communication alive between presbytery meetings.

*The presbytery web site (www.beaverbutler.org) contains articles, notices, presbytery meeting agendas and minutes, mission information and much more.

*The most effective form of communication is face to face conversation. Presbytery representatives are available to preach, speak to classes, offer training, meet with pastor groups, visit with sessions and congregations.

Communication is dependent on the desire and willingness of the parties to participate in our common work. We encourage that willingness when our efforts are dedicated to the common causes of the Gospel which forms us as a presbytery.

The Mission and Ministry of
Beaver Butler Presbytery

INVESTING IN THE FUTURE ....

Candidates Stephen and Eliza Cramer
(Father and Daughter)

Ordained ministers are important to the present and future of the church. To a large extent, how God uses their gifts, insights, and energy will shape how effectively Presbyterian Christians will serve our Lord in our changing and challenging world.

Currently in Beaver-Butler Presbytery, fourteen persons are preparing for ordained ministry. Differing in age, gender, gifts, and pastoral interests, they are one in sensing God's special call to minister for Him.

God calls all of us. Among other things, He calls us to support these future church leaders. We are called to personally encourage them, to help them discern the best contexts for ministry, and, in many cases, to help them meet the personal and financial costs of preparing for ordained ministry.

And it may also be that God is calling some of us to special ministry in His church and His world. Listen and respond.

The Mission and Ministry of
Beaver Butler Presbytery

INVESTING IN THE FUTURE ....

Candidates Stephen and Eliza Cramer
(Father and Daughter)

Ordained ministers are important to the present and future of the church. To a large extent, how God uses their gifts, insights, and energy will shape how effectively Presbyterian Christians will serve our Lord in our changing and challenging world.

Currently in Beaver-Butler Presbytery, fourteen persons are preparing for ordained ministry. Differing in age, gender, gifts, and pastoral interests, they are one in sensing God's special call to minister for Him.

God calls all of us. Among other things, He calls us to support these future church leaders. We are called to personally encourage them, to help them discern the best contexts for ministry, and, in many cases, to help them meet the personal and financial costs of preparing for ordained ministry.

And it may also be that God is calling some of us to special ministry in His church and His world. Listen and respond.

The Mission and Ministry of Beaver Butler Presbytery

INVESTING IN YOUTH...

is crucial for young people and for the church. Hear what three Beaver-Butler young people say.

Samantha Rodgers grew up in the church, but camp was the catalyst for her faith. "Camp was my introduction to the Gospel of Jesus Christ. Attending Music Camp at Lambec at the age of twelve was an awesome experience. I was a camper for six years, and each year my faith was energized. I have been a member of the camp staff for six summers and will return this summer for my second year as the resident director. Sharing the Gospel with others, as I developed and led devotions and Bible studies for staff and campers, has led me to explore a call to ministry. I am now a middler student at Pittsburgh Seminary, pursuing either a career in the pastorate or in camping ministry. What has camp meant to me? Everything! It has led me to the Lord and into service for the Lord!"

Michele Hartung and Dana Jespersen were delegates to the last Youth Triennium, an experience they describe as "a spiritual safari." "On the second day we met with our small group of twenty, a mix of youth from around the world. Throughout the week we met with our small groups, worshipped with thousands of youth and brought back the 70's with a disco dance party. We had good times; we also were serious as we took communion and discussed world issues. One of the most moving moments was the candlelit vigil, where thousands of teens stood in silence. To see other youth dealing with the same issues you are makes Triennium a spiritually moving experience which is like no other. If you're teetering on the edge of going to the next Triennium, just dive in and do it!"

The Mission and Ministry of Beaver Butler Presbytery

INVESTING IN YOUTH...

is crucial for young people and for the church. Hear what three Beaver-Butler young people say.

Samantha Rodgers grew up in the church, but camp was the catalyst for her faith. "Camp was my introduction to the Gospel of Jesus Christ. Attending Music Camp at Lambec at the age of twelve was an awesome experience. I was a camper for six years, and each year my faith was energized. I have been a member of the camp staff for six summers and will return this summer for my second year as the resident director. Sharing the Gospel with others, as I developed and led devotions and Bible studies for staff and campers, has led me to explore a call to ministry. I am now a middler student at Pittsburgh Seminary, pursuing either a career in the pastorate or in camping ministry. What has camp meant to me? Everything! It has led me to the Lord and into service for the Lord!"

Michele Hartung and Dana Jespersen were delegates to the last Youth Triennium, an experience they describe as "a spiritual safari." "On the second day we met with our small group of twenty, a mix of youth from around the world. Throughout the week we met with our small groups, worshipped with thousands of youth and brought back the 70's with a disco dance party. We had good times; we also were serious as we took communion and discussed world issues. One of the most moving moments was the candlelit vigil, where thousands of teens stood in silence. To see other youth dealing with the same issues you are makes Triennium a spiritually moving experience which is like no other. If you're teetering on the edge of going to the next Triennium, just dive in and do it!"

The Mission and Ministry of
Beaver-Butler Presbytery

INVESTING IN MISSION...

Mission Challenge '07

The Congregational Mission Unit challenges all the congregations of the Presbytery to build a support relationship with a Presbyterian Church (USA) mission co-worker by November 2008.

Support can be given;

- 1) by praying for your mission co-worker.
- 2) by providing non-financial support through letters and visits.
- 3) by providing financial support of the mission co-worker at any level the congregation feels called to contribute. (It costs an average of $50,000 to keep a missionary in the field for a year.)

You can choose a mission co-worker to support by calling Wes Wilkinson (888-728-7228 ext. 5349) or using the pcusa.org/missionconnections web site.

This relationship will become a blessing to both your congregation and the mission co-worker.

The Mission and Ministry of
Beaver-Butler Presbytery

INVESTING IN MISSION...

Mission Challenge '07

The Congregational Mission Unit challenges all the congregations of the Presbytery to build a support relationship with a Presbyterian Church (USA) mission co-worker by November 2008.

Support can be given;

- 1) by praying for your mission co-worker.
- 2) by providing non-financial support through letters and visits.
- 3) by providing financial support of the mission co-worker at any level the congregation feels called to contribute. (It costs an average of $50,000 to keep a missionary in the field for a year.)

You can choose a mission co-worker to support by calling Wes Wilkinson (888-728-7228 ext. 5349) or using the pcusa.org/missionconnections web site.

This relationship will become a blessing to both your congregation and the mission co-worker.